

Regional Rural Banks in Liberalized Environment: With Special Reference To Northeast india

By Ambika Prasad Pati

Mittal Publications, New Delhi, 2005. N.A. Book Condition: New. 23 cms. x, 130 p. ,Rural development in India has remained on of the pertinent issues confronting the planners of the country. Since independence ample resources have been marshalled to uplift the economic condition of the rural masses. Despite various interventions from the Governments side the desired results are yet to be achieved. One of such measures was the strengthening of financial institutional network for rural areas. On this front the Government tried to supplement the earlier network for rural areas. On this front the Government tried to supplement the earlier network of commercial banks and cooperative banks with a new set of 196 Regional Rural Banks from the year 1975 onwards. RRBs are now three for nearly 30 years but many of them have not fulfilled the expectations of the rural people and of the planners. Most of them are reeling under huge accumulated losses and non-performing assets. In many states their profitability and viability are at stake and many of them are not worth continuing. Similar situation is also found in the North-East region. Since this region is predominantly rural in nature the performance of RRBs operating here are...
