Not illustrated. 1894 Excerpt: .phenomenal success of a summer school for teachers, the largest, the most thoroughly organized and the most comprehensive in its curriculum in America, is that it generously meets the demand of a large body of teachers who wish to improve themselves in scientific and professional subjects. The entire University equipment and its faculty are at its service. Instructors and lecturers of special lines of elementary work representing the most advanced thought and experience are added, so that the principals and teachers of Minnesota schools are assured that they have the best at home. This is not the place to review the entire work of this large school; but among the attractive features of it might be noticed that principals and teachers of many years experience took the places of pupils in elementary laboratory physics, botany and chemistry, and pursued these subjects with the enthusiasm of youth; some selected single subjects giving their entire attention to them for the four weeks. It is a surprise how much a mature and earnest student can accomplish by this plan of concentration. Profess TABLE XLVIII. State Summer Training Schools and Institutes for the year ending July 31st, 1894. ore report them as having completed the entire work of a regular University term. Points from High School Congress. THE REPORT OK COMMITTEE OF TEN. Neglects the humanitarian side of education as exemplified in manual training, music and drawing. The committee did not undertake to articulate all the contributions of the various...
